07 April 2025
27/4/25
5

"A small moment in nature uplifts and transforms our mood"

Dust of Snow

by Robert Frost

I Answer the following Word Meanings:-

a Shook: To have moved

b Dust of snow: Fine particles of snow that fall.

c Hemlock tree: A poisonous plant with small white flowers.

d Rued: Held in regret

Sentence 9

II Reference To Context

1 The ---------- tree.

a Who is 'me' in the given extract?

Ans The word 'me' refers to poet himself.

b What did the Crow do to the hemlock tree?

Ans The crow shook the hemlock tree, causing the dust of snow - tiny particles of snow resting on the tree - to fall onto the poet.

c What happened after crow's action?

Ans After the crow shook the hemlock tree, snow fell on the poet, uplifting his mood. This small event transformed his day from gloom to positivity.

Scanned with OKEN Scanner

III Answer the following in Short Answers:-

Q1 What is the underlying message for us in hectic life with reference to the poem 'Dust of Snow'?

Ans The poem 'Dust of Snow' teaches us to find joy in small, unexpected moments. It reminds us to pause, appreciate nature's beauty, and let simple experiences uplift our spirits, even amidst a hectic life. A shift in perspective can transform our day.

Q2 Why does the poet say that he had save some part of a day rued?

Ans The poet says he saved part of the day he had rued because the falling snow uplifted his mood. This simple, unexpected moment helped him shake off regret and sorrow, allowing him to enjoy the remaining day with positivity and purpose. It highlights the transformative power of small, natural experiences.

IV Answer the following in Long Answers:-

Q1 Often we feel depressed and hopeless by acts of life suddenly, if changes comes in our mood the cheerfullness replaces the sense of regret. Justify the statement in context to the poem 'Dust of Snow'.

Ans Frost uses a small, almost trivial natural occurrence to change a grim perspective in 'Dust of Snow'. The poet describes his day as burdened by regret and despair - an all-too-common feeling when one isn't feeling well. Yet after a crow shakes down some dust of snow from a hemlock into his person, this trivial act changes everything for the speaker. The Dust of Snow is a metaphor for the change in perception that occurs from regret to happiness and newfound opportunity. Such evocative imagery suggests that something so small can help someone avoid bieng stuck in a rut to acknowledge a new day, new life. We sometimes need such trivial things to snap us out of it when we feel conflicted about ourselves or our positioning in the world so that we can find meaning again - even if there is no meaning beyond what we make from our day.

Change paragraph